Confessions Of A Sociopath Life

A quick word on my own thoughts about sex. I have had plenty of bad experiences, probably not surprising. By bad experiences I mean experiences that seemed to cheapen rather than deepen a relationship, that made me feel used, that felt like a parallel experience, and even experiences where I feel like the lines of consent got blurred against me.

As a Jewish guy myself with a rabbi for an uncle this is the exact kind of story he would absolutely love. I can already hear him telling it and adding on his wisdom "and this schmlek, who supposedly wasn't really a Jew, ended up living the type of virtuous Jewish life that we all should strive for making him as much of a Jew as anyone here" or something like that.

Honestly, I feel like the first response to my original comment was just pathetic/sad. The thing is, when what the next "anonymous" poster referred to as limerence (no "a's" in "limerence") is being initiated by a sociopath (and I have a hard time believing that a sociopath could even develop limerence, much less oxytocin-based long-term love), for the sociopath it is ONLY a game. It is not ...

Very good episode. Dinah was aggravating me this episode until the reveal that she and the team covered up the truth. Roy being the real killer is believable without ruining his character and they set it up well (specifically the suspicious line about there only being one pit left which seems weird to highlight) while still being a good twist.
