Don't hurt people, and don't take their stuff. Simple and straightforward, that's liberty in a nutshell—no assembly required. And yet it seems like, more and more, the decisions Washington makes about what to do for us, or to us, or even against us, are having an increasingly adverse impact on our lives.

Don't Hurt People and Don't Take Their Stuff

Don't Hurt People and Don't Take Their Stuff sounds great. I even read the introduction, and was caught up in what Kibbe describes as the rules of liberty: (1) don't hurt people, (2) don't take their stuff, (3) take responsibility, (4) work for it, (5) mind your own business, and (6) fight the power.

Because hurting people, hurt people. We act thoughtlessly at times. We lash out, we say things we don't mean, and we take the people we love down in our wake. Most of the time, we don't mean what we say, but we say it anyways because of the relief that we experience when we say it.

Hurting people, hurt people. - The Odyssey Online

"Hurt people hurt people. We are not being judgmental by separating ourselves from such people. But we should do so with compassion. Compassion is defined as a "keen awareness of the suffering of another coupled with a desire to see it relieved." People hurt others as a result of their own inner strife and pain.
