Noir fiction - Wikipedia

Laura Lippman, the New York Times bestselling author of Sunburn, After I'm Gone, and many others, thinks the French obsession with American writers stems from their love of stories that depict the country as they imagine it, and not because of American noir's gloomy, violent nature. "I think other countries like fiction that presents the US as they think it is," said Lippman.

Why Do the French Love American Noir? | CrimeReads

Of all the Hard Case Crime books that could have made this list, I have a soft spot for this one. I'm due for a re-read, because while thinking about it, I could recall very little of the specific plot, but I still remember the feeling of being soaked in an old-school noir with a modern feel. Max Phillips may be a pen name.
