The claim is made here that "reverse parking is safer" but the article gives no references for this, it is merely someone's opinion. Also, if this is a study then was the study done in a shopping center car park where presumably there is a near constant churn of parking or in an office car park where there is a peak early morning parking period?

James Cameron's Aliens, the godfather of sci-fi action movies, is about as straightforward as a film gets (except for the part where the aliens are actually giant penises, but that was already there when Cameron came in). It's just a simple story about a bunch of American soldiers sent to a faraway land where they are led to their senseless deaths by incompetent leaders.

Wow! And here I am feeling sorry for myself, but you have to deal with the liss if someone your mom cares about, yet he abused her, and then the pain and animosity that you feel because he did, in every sense of the word molest you, and now deal with the "afterbirth" if you will, of his dying, without any kind of closure!

For those of you who haven't watched Netflix's 10-episode documentary Making a Murderer, do so immediately. It's the most addictive, infuriating, engrossing and maddening true crime story since the first season of Serial-- in fact, it may be better. Like Serial, it's based on a mystery surrounding a murder that made huge waves locally, but that those of us who don't watch Dateline or Nancy Grace ...
