When we introduced the type BookStore, we deliberately chose to give the type constructor BookStore a different name from the value constructor Book, purely to make it obvious which was which.. However, in Haskell, the names of types and values are independent of each other. We only use a type constructor (i.e. the type's name) in a type declaration or a type signature.

A file has two key properties: a filename (usually written as one word) and a path. The path specifies the location of a file on the computer. For example, there is a file on my Windows 7 laptop with the filename project.docx in the path C:\Users\asweigart\Documents. The part of the filename after the last period is called the file's extension and tells you a file's type.
