The weblog of Norman Geras. I'd sort of lost sight of this one: the controversy over the name of the Washington Redskins. But it's still going strong. It seems that those defending the team's hanging on to that name are appealing to the alleged fact that 'only one in 10 Native Americans were offended' by it, as well as to the more general consideration of 'history and legacy and tradition'.

In America, marriage bonds took the place of marriage licenses, having been required at least as early as the 1660s. The idea was to prevent illegal marriages (if, for example, one were already married or underage) by making people who knew the affianced couple pay out a large amount of money that would be forfeit if they failed to disclose an objection before the marriage took place.
