In solid-state physics, a band gap, also called an energy gap or bandgap, is an energy range in a solid where no electron states can exist. In graphs of the electronic band structure of solids, the band gap generally refers to the energy difference (in electron volts) between the top of the valence band and the bottom of the conduction band in insulators and semiconductors.

But I think you may be right that it wasn't as strong (wasn't as high in the 1 region) and there was probably less heat transferred to the atmosphere than 98 (warm water not making it as far east suggest less westerly winds->less energy transfer, and if the skies weren't as clear, that'd also mean less atmospheric impact), at least early on.
