Some of the questions people ask me. Q What inspired you to write Dear Nobody?. A I knew a young girl who had been through a similar situation, and I felt then how deeply all the members of her family had been affected. But mainly I wanted to write about love, and how it would survive under very difficult circumstances. It helped a lot to talk to young people about love and friendship, loyalty ...

(Children's Librarian) Here's a gift you helped give a young patron of mine. This young man is a very good reader, but a little picky. I managed to find a few books he thought he'd try, but nothing grabbed his interest, until I remembered a book from the Teen Book Club - The Devil's Breath. I told him about it, and found it on our shelf, and he was thrilled!
