Cell biology (also called cytology, from the Greek κύτος, kytos, "vessel") is a branch of biology that studies the structure and function of the cell, which is the basic unit of life. Cell biology is concerned with the physiological properties, metabolic processes, signaling pathways, life cycle, chemical composition and interactions of the cell with their environment.

The cell (from Latin cella, meaning "small room") is the basic structural, functional, and biological unit of all known living organisms. A cell is the smallest unit of life. Cells are often called the "building blocks of life". The study of cells is called cell biology or cellular biology.

Cell - Intercellular communication: Formation of a multicellular organism starts with a small collection of similar cells in an embryo and proceeds by continuous cell division and specialization to produce an entire community of cooperating cells, each with its own role in the life of the organism. Through cell cooperation, the organism becomes much more than the sum of its component parts.

The extracellular matrix is a meshwork of proteins and carbohydrates that binds cells together or divides one tissue from another. The extracellular matrix is the product principally of connective tissue, one of the four fundamental tissue types, but may also be produced by other cell types, including those in epithelial tissues.

Epithelium (/ ˌ ɛ p ɪ ˈ θ iː l i ə m /) is one of the four basic types of animal tissue, along with connective tissue, muscle tissue and nervous tissue. Epithelial tissues line the outer surfaces of organs and blood vessels throughout the body, as well as the inner surfaces of cavities in many internal organs. An example is the epidermis, the outermost layer of the skin.

En aminosyre er en organisk syre med kjemisk formel  $\text{NH}_2\text{-CHR-COOH}$ , der sidegruppen R varierer. Aminosyrer er byggesteiner i proteiner, som består av lange kjeder aminosyrer. Kortere kjeder kalles peptider. Aminosyrene hektes sammen ved at  $\text{NH}_2$ -gruppen (aminogruppen) reagerer med  $\text{COOH}$ -gruppen (syregruppen).  $\text{CHR}$ -gruppen reagerer ikke med noen av dem, og fungerer som ekstra binding av  $\text{NH}_2$ -gruppen ...

Which viewpoint is best supported by the evidence? Did life begin without a Creator or did God create it? Evidence that life never comes from non-living materials is so abundant that it is a basic principle of science called the Principle of Biogenesis (living things come only from living things).
