James Salter's short story collection, Dusk and Other Stories, is not a book that is kind to women. Out of its eleven stories, three are told primarily from a woman's point of view—and in those stories, the women are betrayed, used by unscrupulous men, or, in the most severe instance, killed in a horseback riding accident.

About Dusk and Other Stories. First published nearly a quarter-century ago and one of the very few short-story collections to win the PEN/Faulkner Award, this is American fiction at its most vital—each narrative a masterpiece of sustained power and seemingly effortless literary grace.

Dusk and Other Stories by James Salter ...

[James Salter] can suggest in a single sentence, an individual's entire history, the complex interplay of longing and fear, hope and need, that has brought about the present. In doing so, these stories glimmer with the magic of fiction; they pull us, hungrily, into the mundane drama of their characters' lives."—New York Times
